

Arsenal to Aid Small Business

BY ROBERT W. RICHARDS

Washington, April 21—(Copley Press Leased Wire)—The Joliet Arsenal has been named among 34 additional sample display and procurement information centers in 16 states as an aid to small business firms which seek to become army suppliers.

Concerns interested in manufacturing some phase of army ordnance can address the commanding general, ordnance ammunition center, Joliet, Ill., Arsenal, according to Army Undersecretary Archibald S. Alexander.

The Joliet Arsenal is one of the new centers which have on hand plans, specifications, and drawings so that business men may examine what is needed both from prime and subcontractors. They can ask their companies to be placed on bidders lists.

Other Illinois procurement information centers are located in Chicago and Rock Island.
